Stocks plunged the first day after the historic presidential election, the Industrials losing 5.05 percent, the S&P 500 off 5.27 percent, the NDX and RUT losing close to 6 percent. The decline was not unexpected as Tuesday's 30 and 15 minute Full Stochastics were calling for a decline Wednesday, as were both our Bullish and our Bearish short-term scenario Elliott Wave labelings, our annotation arrows pointing down for Wednesday in last night's charts. In fact, stocks fell precisely as projected in the charts Tuesday, as shown on page 9. We do not believe this is some sort of comment on Obama's election, as history shows we should see at least a 5 percent pop over Tuesday's closing levels sometime over the next four months. It simply means stocks are following the patterns that market psychology suggests are likely at this time. The problems this economy faces are daunting, and we believe the solutions tried so far have failed, and those proposed continue to miss the mark. There is great market danger ahead, likely hitting stride from mid 2009 into 2010. This coming decline could lead to an international solution, where several separate nations yield power to one individual.

We still face an uncertain technical pattern over the short-run. The problem is the patterns evident at this time can complete with prices exploding higher from here or plunging lower. None of us like when technical analysis is vague, but it happens on occasion. If prices explode higher, it means wave b-up has started, the middle phase of a three phase Bear Market. If so, that allows for a staircase rally over the next 3 to 4 months. Then a sharp wave c-down will follow. The other possibility is that we will soon see prices top, maybe they topped Tuesday, and a sharp decline into the bottom of wave a-down is next. That would represent the end of the first phase of the Bear market, and the start of a multi-month rally, wave b-up, the eye of the hurricane so to speak. Either way, this suggests that President Obama should experience a short honeymoon, followed by a devastating catastrophic market collapse, the final wave c-down for this Bear market, starting in 2009.

Very short-term, the 30 Minute and 15 Minute Full Stochastics suggest stocks could rise Thursday.

The Dow Industrials plunged 486.01 points, closing at 9,139.27 Wednesday, November 5th, one day after the election. NYSE volume was flat at 87 percent of its 10 day average. Downside volume was 94 percent, with declining issues at 80 percent, with downside points at 98 percent, yet another 90 percent down day, warning the worst may not be over. S&P 500 Demand Power fell 11 points to 451, while Supply Pressure rose 12 points to 494, telling us the decline was powerful and solid.

To repeat what we said, in last weekend's newsletter, our view of the big picture after this developing decline to a bottom for wave a-down, "if there is a bottom here, it is certainly a technical bounce we get. The present economic fiasco does not deserve a bottom here. The bailout plan is an utter socialist disaster. A major recession, possibly depression, is just starting, and nobody has a clue what to do. Confidence in markets and governments is gone, the PPT is proving ineffective, jobs are disintegrating, foreclosures wiping out entire neighborhoods like some sort of plague, runs on banks 1930's style, mortgage backed securities so complicated nobody can identify who owes what to whom, lines of credit evaporated, cries for Federal Reserve guarantees of pretty much everything contracted to offset all counterparty risk in the universe, trembling lipped, flush-faced newly anointed King Henry, the Treasury Secretary, letting it slip he won't be staying on the job much longer, "nationalization" the most popular word in the English vocabulary, and a political campaign with divisiveness rhetoric last seen in pre-Civil War times.

"Here is what is going on big picture: We just got a reconfirmation of the Dow Theory Primary Bear Market sell signal, and just got a new sell signal in our Primary Trend Indicator. These are two long-term fresh sell signals, suggesting that this Bear Market is nowhere near over. It means the coming bounce will be corrective. Putting this all together, it means the decline from the October 2007 highs is just wave a-down of an a-down, b-up, c-down Bear Market. Friday's closing low came precisely on the one-year anniversary of the all-time high in October 2007, and precisely the same day, six years later, from the October 2002 Bear Market bottom. This is amazing. It has a poetry to it. Whether the final bottom comes Friday, October 10th, or next Friday, or some other day soon, this will only be the bottom of the first leg down of a three-phase Bear Market.

"The next leg, wave b-up, could/should last about 2 to 4 months, and we anticipate a ton of volatility. We have a bunch of phi mate turns coming over the next 2 to 4 months, the next one after October 13th scheduled for October 23rd +/- . Wave b-up could be an a-up, b-down, c-up affair, or a five wave a-b-c-d-e triangle, with violent swings, each wave shorter than its precedent wave.

"Once wave b-up completes, sometime in early 2009 most likely, wave c-down will follow, which should prove cataclysmic, and based upon how low wave a-down got Friday, will likely hit new lows far below the 2002 lows. It will feel like it is ushering in Armageddon. Conservative investors must raise cash at the coming technical bounce, wave b-up. If wave b-up retraces 38.2 percent of the decline from October 2007, it could rise to 10,295. If that is the case, it argues for a triangle pattern, essentially sideways pattern for wave b-up, as its price target would get hit before a reasonable proportional time period has passed. If the rebound is 50 percent, we are talking an upside target of 11,040. A 61.8 percent retrace would target 11,785.

"Wave c-down could result in a new form of government, something quite different than the Founding Fathers established. There could be an international crisis that feeds it, perhaps a new war, assassinations, or something horrendous and violent. It is here that owning gold coins will be important.

The Demand Power/Supply Pressure indicators generated an enter short position signal September 4th, and remains there Wednesday. Wednesday's McClellan Oscillator worsened to positive +197.86. The Summation Index improved to negative -2,932.05. NYSE New Highs was flat at 7, with New Lows flat at 28 Wednesday.

The percent of DJIA stocks above their 30 day moving average fell to 26.67 from 50.00. The percent above 10 day fell to 66.67 from 96.67. The percent above 5 day fell to 13.33 from 96.67. The NYSE 10 day average Advance/Decline Line Indicator improved to positive +174.1, remaining on a "buy" signal from November 4th, when it rose above the positive +120.00 threshold necessary for a new "buy."

Our three Blue Chip key trend-finder indicators (other than the Demand Power/Supply Pressure Indicator) moved to a new "sideways" signal Wednesday. The DJIA 30 day Stochastic Fast fell to 26.67, decisively below the Slow at 38.00, triggering a new "sell" signal November 5th. The DJIA 14 day Stochastic fell to 63.33, below the Slow at 73.33, remaining on a "buy" signal from October 28th, but close to a new sell. The Fast had to cross more than 10 points below the Slow for a new "sell." The S&P 500 Purchasing Power Indicator fell 12 points to negative -88.27, triggering a new "sell" signal November 5th.

The Plunge Protection Team Risk Indicator was fell to negative -23.41 Wednesday, remaining on a "buy" signal from October 30th. A drop below negative -16.0 triggered a new "buy" signal. After it generated a buy signal on July 31st, the Industrials rose 489 points. When the reading rises above positive +20.00, or falls below negative -16.00, we usually see multi-week rallies. On the other hand, declines can (don't have to) occur when this reading falls within the range of negative -16.00 to positive +20.00. The PPT Indicator was in the range where declines typically occur, between negative -16.00 and positive +20.00 for most of the late December/January decline, which saw the DJIA drop over 1,100 points. It then rose above +20.00 January 14th. Rallies usually start about a week or two after this measure exceeds positive +20.00. When this indicator last went below negative -16.00, triggering a new "buy" signal, on February 7th, 2008, the Industrials closed at 12,247. After that the Industrials rose 509 points. After they rose above negative -16.00 on March 3rd, the DJIA dropped over 500 points. From May to July 2008 we saw a significant decline within this range, 1,650 points. After this indicator generated a sell signal October 1st, the Industrials declined 2,948 points.

The DJIA Call/Put Ratio fell to 0.99 Wednesday, on a "neutral" signal from May 27th (moving below 1.00 and above 1.40 is neutral, while rising decisively above 1.00 (above 1.10) triggers a new "buy"). On Wednesday, the Secondary Trend Indicator fell 5 points to negative -6, on a sell signal. Above zero is Bullish. Below zero is Bearish. The closer it moves toward zero, the greater the risk of a coming trend turn, thus caution with open positions would be recommended. After it turned Bearish on December 31st, 2007, the Industrials fell 1,630 Points, or 12.3 percent. After it generated a sell, on June 17th, the Industrials fell 1,200 points. After it triggered a sell signal on October 2nd, the Industrials fell 2,600 points. This indicator correlates well with price trends.

On October 10th, the Industrials blew past the downside target of 9,750 we had been warning for months would be reached, per a Head & Shoulders top in the Dow Industrials. There is a smaller H&S top that has completed with a downside target of 7,500ish, which we also came close to hitting Friday, October 10th. That level could be tossed aside over the next few weeks if the triangle scenario is occurring.

10 Day Average Short-term Advance/Decline Signals

| Index | Nov 5th A/D Indicator | Signal | Date of Signal | Fullest Extent of Index Move Since Signal |
|--------------|------------------------------|---------------|-----------------------|--|
| NYSE/S&P 500 | + 174.1 | Buy | Nov 4th, 2008 | SPX Rose 0 Points (0.0 %) |
| NASDAQ 100 | + 1.5 | Sell | Aug 20th, 2008 | NDX Fell 766 Points (40.00 %) |
| Russell 2000 | - 8.4 | Sell | Aug 25th, 2008 | RUT Fell 272 Points (37.8 %) |

Shorting should only be done with funds that are speculative and the investor is willing to accept a substantial loss on. That is because the PPT is very active at this time.

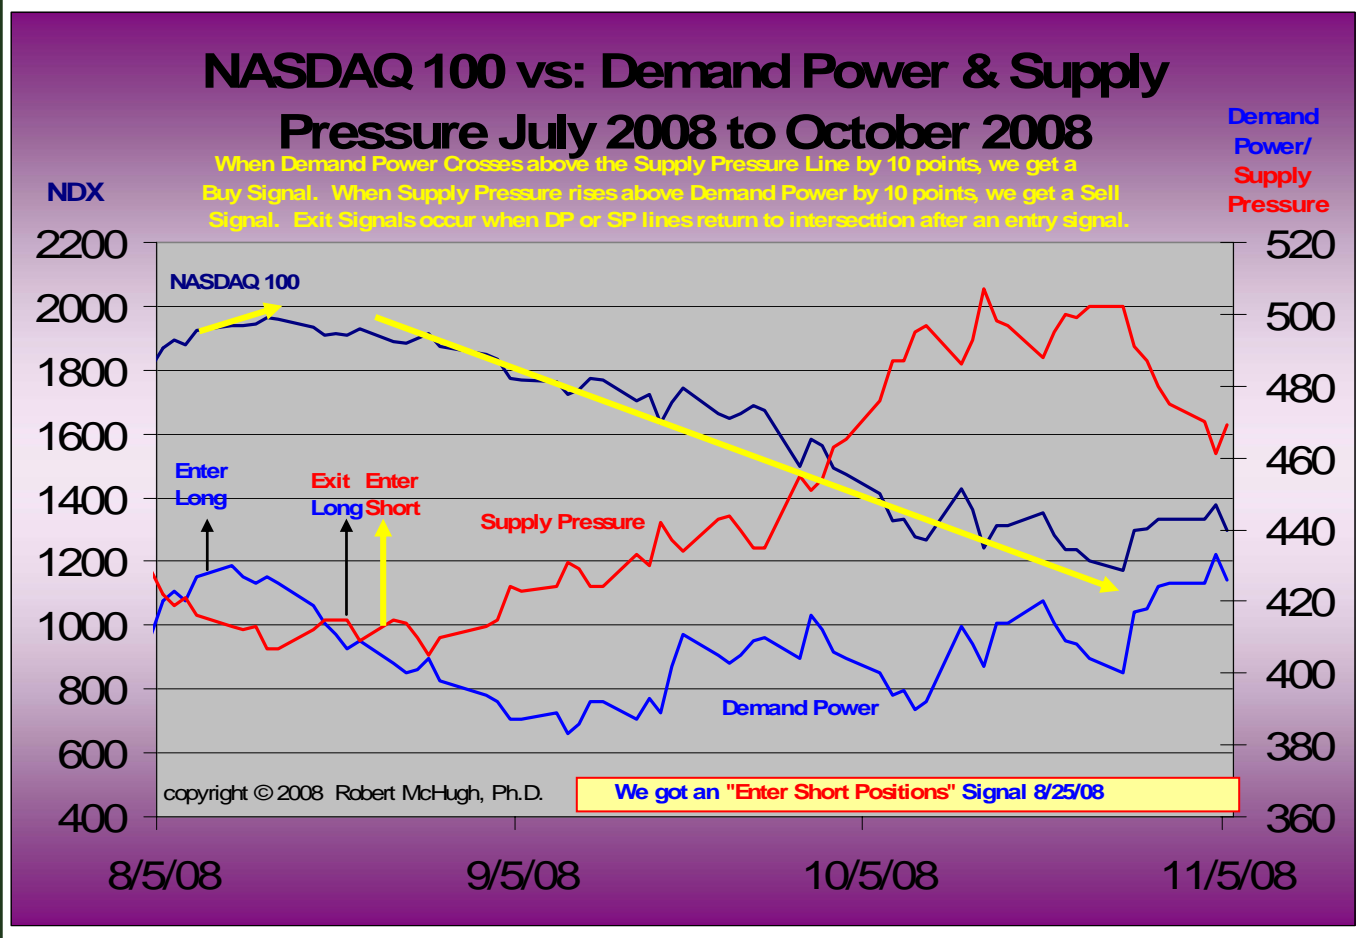

Have you noticed that the NDX crashed 40.0 percent since our NDX 10 day average Advance/Decline Line Indicator generated a sell signal August 20th, 2008, less than two months ago.

Gold's Daily Full Stochastic generated a new buy signal Tuesday, October 28th. The HUI Amex Gold Bugs Index Daily and Weekly Full Stochastics just generated new buy signals.

The NASDAQ 100 plunged 78.42 points Wednesday, closing at 1,299.98. Volume was flat at 88 percent of its 10 day average. Downside volume led at 91 percent. Declining issues led at 95 percent, with downside points at 99 percent. NDX Demand Power fell 7 points to 426, with Supply Pressure up 8 points at 469, telling us the decline was powerful and solid.

Our key trend-finder indicators generated a new "sell" signal Wednesday. The NDX 14 day Stochastic Fast fell to 54.00, decisively below the Slow at 65.00, triggering a new "sell" signal November 5th. The NDX Purchasing Power Indicator fell 18 points to negative -62.02, triggering a new "sell" signal November 5th. The NDX 10 day average Advance/Decline Line Indicator fell to positive + 1.5, remaining on a "sell" signal from August 20th, when it fell below the negative -5.0 threshold for a new "sell" signal. The Demand Power/Supply Pressure Indicator generated an enter short positions signal Monday August 25th, when the SP indicator rose more than 10 points above the DP indicator, and remains there Wednesday, November 5th.

The Russell 2000 plunged 31.33 points Wednesday, closing at 514.64. Volume was down at 90 percent of its 10 day average, with downside volume leading at 89 percent, with declining issues leading at 93 percent. The RUT Purchasing Power Indicator fell to positive + 9.68, triggering a new "sell" signal November 5th. The RUT 10 day average Advance/Decline Line Indicator worsened to negative - 8.40, remaining on a "sell" signal from August 25th, needing to rise above the positive +180.00 threshold for a new "buy" signal.

The HUI Amex Gold Bugs Index fell 10.28 points Wednesday, closing at 213.62. Volume was flat at 88 percent of its 10 day average. Downside volume was 88 percent, with declining issues at 91 percent, and downside points at 95 percent. Our key trend-finder indicators remain on a "sideways" signal Wednesday, November 5th. The HUI 30 day Stochastic Fast fell to 10.00, above the Slow at 3.33, remaining on a "sell" signal from October 2nd. The Fast has to rise more than 20 points above the Slow to trigger a new "buy." Close. The HUI Purchasing Power Indicator fell to 187.09, remaining on a "buy" signal from October 29th. December Gold fell to 741.0. Silver rose to 10.29, while Oil fell to 65.09. The Dollar rose 0.27 to 84.86. Bonds rose sharply, up over a point to 116^20. The PPT has to buy the long end to keep Bonds headed in the right direction, to support the housing market, especially now that AMBAC and MBIA are no longer rated AAA, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac — who hold half of all mortgages - have collapsed, and credit markets have frozen, requiring lower interest rates, and Master Planner interest rate (bond) intervention. The VIX rose to 54.56, as volatility and fear rose once again.

The Australia SPASX200 rose 121.50 points, or 2.98 percent Wednesday. Click on the Weekend Australia Report, which includes EW charts of the FTSE and DAX, for the latest analysis.

Bottom Line: The Fed has to continue hyperinflating to bail out this sick economy, feeding a major trend up in precious metals. Households, not just Wall Street, must be bailed out. If this doesn't happen we are headed for an economic depression.
